

Abstract

- The rapid development and acceptance of portable computing/communications devices has given rise to many new and varied applications with respect to monitoring and feedback in the field of the Health Sciences.
- 5 In particular, portable computing/communication devices have given the consumer/practitioner new and more convenient ways to monitor nutritional intake and adherence to diet plans.